Maharashtra National Law University Mumbai invites applications for the position of Research Officer/Statistician under the project ‘Evaluating role and function of Women Policing in Mahila Police Station at State of Maharashtra’.

ABOUT THE PROJECT

Vivekananda said, “There is no chance of the welfare of the world unless the condition of women is improved. It is not possible for a bird to fly only on one wing.” The Universal Declaration of Human Rights states that everyone has a right to take part in their government and thus the empowerment and autonomy of women and their participation in the socio-economic and political realm is essential for achieving a transparent and accountable government. Achieving the goals of equal participation of women and men in decision making will provide a balance that will more meaningfully reflect the position of society.

Without the active participation women and the incorporation of women’s perspective at all levels of decision making, goals of equality, development and peace cannot be achieved. At the fourth United Nations conference 1995 in Beijing, China it was reiterated that women empowerment and their full participation in all spheres of society including decision making process is fundamental for achieving equality, development and peace. However, despite having umpteen conventions and conferences on women rights, their participation in decision making process has been considerably low. The situation is critical in the Maharashtra Police Service, an important agency of the criminal justice system perhaps because, by and large, policing is regarded as a male bastion. In spite of the fact that women have been introduced into this male bastion and tried to carve a way out for themselves, the number of such women are low.

Maharashtra National Law University Mumbai shall be conducting a research and thereby attempting to understand the role and function of Mahila Police Officers and whether there is a need to have Mahila Police Stations in the state of Maharashtra.

National Commission for Women is the funding agency for this research project.
